

Supporting myself

I'm an Earthling, so what ?

Today, September 28th, 2026, I've received approximately 30 recruitment emails so far.

What's going on now...?

I haven't done anything...?

Could it be that 3 million yen...?

Updates to the 2nd and 4th homepages

Bill Gates said that 1 billion people will disappear in the future due to the rise of AI.

Since it's coming from the person who first created computers, it might be credible.

Incidentally, the next generation of computers will be spatial recognition terminals that operate keyboards and other things in the space in front of you... I wonder if they've already been completed in the United States...

Apparently there was a time when people licked pencils, and it seems there was no harm to health.

A few days ago, I received a call from some company asking if they could draw a manga for me.

I usually only get scam-like calls, so I hung up immediately, but...

Was it a work of art or a way of life...? I wonder if they meant to turn it into a manga?

Now there are even AI-powered manga creators.

SIM-only contract only

All major smartphone carriers rejected my application, so I'm only getting a SIM-only contract... This contract will be difficult unless you can do the following:

- ① Insert and remove the SIM yourself
- ② Set up the device yourself using the included instructions

Therefore, even a cheap smartphone (like one for 1 yen) from Yahoo! Auctions is acceptable. However, you must be using services like PayPay, d 払い, and au Pay on a daily basis. FamilyMart generally uses d-Wifi, but... if it's in front of Sapporo Station...
